Ottobock - Greater Nordics

An introduction

1919

Almost one hundred years ago the company was founded by its namesake, Otto Bock, who started to produce prostheses and orthopaedic aids for wounded soldiers from World War I. The company is still family-owned and today managed by his grandson, Professor Hans Georg Näder. With over 8 000 employees located in 50 markets worldwide and an annual turnover of 1 billion EUR, Ottobock is a leading company in the orthopaedic industry. The global headquarters is today located in Duderstadt, Germany.

”Our vision is to excel as the global leader in maintaining and restoring human independence.”

Through our global organization, we provide high-quality, innovative, technologically superior products, services and education to enhance the physical comfort, confidence, independence and mobility of human beings.

Passion for Paralympics

For almost 30 years Ottobock has been at the heart of the Paralympic Movement.

Technical service since the Seoul 1988 Paralympic Games. Ottobock is responsible for getting the athletes back into the competition as fast as possible.

At the Rio 2016 Paralympic Games a technical service team of 100 people from 29 countries worked 14,500 to complete 2408 repairs for 1162 athletes.

Pride in our role supporting athletes and dedication to the importance of mobility drives a Passion for Paralympics that we are excited to share with people living with disabilities and members of the public all over the world.
